Some kept busy during ice storm; others got busy

Baby boom. When the power's out, the house is cold and there isn't much to do ...

Jayme Hay-Mendoza wasn't planning on having another baby. Then again, she wasn't planning on an ice storm knocking out her power for four days, either.

"We just tried to stay warm," said Hay-Mendoza, 20. One deed in particular was more effective than the rest.

"We were pretty active," she said with a laugh. The couple got extra cosy a few times a day, she said. "There was nothing else to do."

On Wednesday, Hay-Mendoza gave birth to a "healthy, ice-storm baby" at Lakeridge Health in Oshawa.

She's probably not the only one. August saw a record high of 265 births at Lakeridge, many premature, said Kim Moran, patient-care manager of the hospital's maternal newborn program. That's 20 more than the highest previous record for a single month.

"We don't have an empty bed," said Moran. "The place is full; it's just been moms out and new moms coming in."

If the staff's ice-storm theory holds true, she said there will be plenty of early October birthdays.

Maternity units at Rouge Valley Health System's two hospitals serving Scarborough and Ajax and Pickering have been busy, too. For August, the campuses saw 143 and 203 newborns respectively, roughly 20 more than the norm in both cases.

Deliveries at Toronto East General Hospital spiked on Sept. 16 and 20, with four more babies born than the average on both days, according to a spokeswoman.

Three other hospitals told Torstar News Service they haven't noticed a boom.

Teacher pleads guilty to professional misconduct

TDSB. Teacher gave student R-rated DVDs and held inappropriate Facebook chats

A Toronto teacher pleaded guilty to professional misconduct at a disciplinary hearing at the Ontario College of Teachers this week for giving a former student DVDs containing sexual content, engaging in inappropriate Facebook communication with that student and failing to report being sexually propositioned by another former student.

Ian Handscomb has been at the Claude Watson School for the Arts since 1996 and is still employed at the school as artistic director, according to a statement his counsel made at the hearing. He was formally disciplined by the college, including a verbal reprimand by the panel and a 20-day suspension.

An agreed statement of facts lays out that Handscomb believed a male student had approached him about "coming out" because he was an openly gay teacher, and further, that Facebook conversations with that student that had sexual content were in reference to sexual orientation and safety in sexual relationships.

The college doesn't have any guidelines for teachers on how they should manage a student's disclosure of his or her sexual orientation, but its advisory on sexual misconduct includes warning teachers to avoid sharing personal information, becoming involved in students' affairs and seeing students in isolated situations.

The statement of facts says Handscomb failed to report being sexually propositioned by a male former student in 2010. That student had attended the school during his Grade 4 and 5 years, leaving in or around 2005, according to the document.

Handscomb did, however, share information about that incident with another former student — the same one he says came out to him, according to an exhibit accompanying the statement of facts.

The statement of facts states Handscomb's Facebook conversations with that student began in February 2008, when the boy was attending Grade 8 at the school, and lasted until 2010. The statement of facts also says that in the spring of 2008, the student advised Handscomb that he was thinking about "coming out" at school.

According to the agreed statement of facts, Handscomb believed the student "made this disclosure to him because he is an openly gay teacher and wanted advice." The statement also says Handscomb drove the student to and from school alone that year, with the knowledge of the student's parents.

After the student moved on to high school, Handscomb gave the 14-year-old R-rated DVDs that contained male nudity and multiple sex scenes, according to the statement of facts.

Penalty

Disciplinary action taken by the college was based on a joint submission of penalty by counsel representing the college and Handscomb. The action against him includes a verbal reprimand by the panel, a requirement to complete a course on professional boundaries, and a 20-day suspension, which Handscomb already served in 2011.

Teacher Ian Handscomb has pleaded guilty to professional misconduct.

Doctors accused of sexual assault found not guilty

Court. Complainant issued a statement saying 'sexual predators' are out there

Two Toronto-area doctors said they looked forward to moving on with their lives after being found not guilty Thursday of drugging and sexually assaulting a medical student in 2011.

The woman at the centre of the case, however, was disappointed at the ruling, saying she was "denied justice" while "sexual predators" remained at large.

Dr. Amitabh Chauhan and Dr. Suganthan Kayilasanathan were accused of drugging and then sexually assaulting the then 23-year-old woman in a hotel room after a night of drinking and dancing at a Toronto club.

Quoted

"I had nothing to gain, I was denied justice today."

The complainant, who cannot be identified

Justice Julie Thorburn said while it was agreed that the two doctors had a "sexual encounter" with the woman, she was not satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the woman was drugged and did not consent to the encounter.

The complainant, who cannot be identified, issued a statement that was read out by a detective who worked on the case.

"I had nothing to gain, I was denied justice today. Sexual predators are out there and need to be stopped," she said.

Five-year partnership. Maple Leaf Square to become Ford Square

Leafs Nation, meet Ford Nation.

No, the city's NHL team hasn't involved itself in next month's municipal elections, but Tuesday Maple Leaf Sports and Entertainment will announce a five-year partnership with Ford Canada that will see the auto company's name and logo appear in places synonymous with the hockey team.

Such as Maple Leaf Square, the popular gathering spot outside the west entrance of the Air Canada Centre where fans congregate before, during, and after games. When the five-year partnership takes effect it will be known as Ford Square.

But a month ahead of local elections involving controversial brothers Rob and Doug Ford, can this marketing move backfire on MLSE and the car manufacturer?

Not necessarily.

"I don't think anybody makes a connection between those two brands," says Brian Cooper, president of the S&E Sponsorship group. "(Politics) doesn't affect it at all. This property developed organically. It's become a sacred ground for the real fan."

While Ford might gain some exposure from Leafs and Raptors broadcasts that cut to shots of the square, Cooper says the company achieves deeper consumer engagement from its Leafs Nation ticket program, which will see the company buy and distribute 200 tickets to every Leafs home game.

Peel Region

SIU probes police shooting

Ontario's police watchdog says it is investigating a fatal police shooting in Brampton during a traffic stop.

The Special Investigations Unit says a male died in hospital after a Peel Region police officer fired his weapon during the incident (on Queen Street east of Kennedy Road) just after 10 p.m. Wednesday.

The SIU says Peel Region police reported that officers in a marked cruiser stopped a vehicle for investigation, and that there was an "interaction" between one of the occupants and the police before an officer "discharged his firearm.'"

The name and age of the male has not been released.

The SIU, which probes all police-related incidents involving death, serious injury or allegations of sexual assault, says it has assigned six investigators and three forensic investigators to the case.

Peel Region police say none of its officers were injured in the incident.

Massive porn bust nabs 60

14 children rescued. Different methods of victimization included 'sexts' that were shared, online luring and sexual abuse, says the OPP

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
jessica.smithcross@metronews.ca

All of the 14 child victims identified in a massive child pornography investigation are from Ontario, police say.

At a press conference in Vaughan Thursday, police forces from across the province announced the rescue of 14 children and the arrest of 60 suspects.

One man arrested, Giovanni "John" Cover, 52, was a caretaker at Northern Secondary School, near Yonge and Eglinton, a spokesperson for the Toronto District School Board confirmed Thursday.

The sweep was the latest co-ordinated by police as part of the Provincial Strategy to Protect Children from Sexual Abuse and Exploitation on the Internet.

Of the 14 victims, there were different methods of victimization, including "sexts" that were shared, online luring and sexual abuse, according to OPP Insp. Scott Naylor, who heads the child sexual exploitation unit. "Some of the victims were not known to the perpetrator and were lured or coerced into doing something online," he said.

Some of the victims have been removed from their homes, in other cases parents were made aware of what happened and all children have been offered support and counselling.

The investigations typically start with officers working online to identify users who are trading child pornography, said Naylor. From there, the investigation fans out and identifies suspect IP addresses.

In this sweep, the pictures and videos were shared by "several methods" but police will not disclose how, so that perpetrators won't switch methods to avoid being caught.

Those investigations lead to child pornography made with children who live in Ontario.

When those children were identified — the image is matched to a child — they are given help, through agencies that partner with the OPP, said Naylor.

In this sweep, the majority of the suspects have been charged with child pornography offences alone. Some also have drug or weapon charges.

A man and a woman from London, Ont., are both facing the most serious charges, including sexual assault, two counts of sexual interference with a person under the age of 16, conspiracy and child pornography offences.

Naylor, asked why the names of the male and female suspect in London weren't released, said: "Any time there's a victim involved, it's paramount we do everything we can not to victimize that person."

Robert E. Muttenthaler from Welland is charged with sexual assault, two counts of sexual interference and voyeurism, as well as child pornography charges.

Patrick Goddard, of London, is facing child pornography charges and extortion. He was arrested earlier in the month.

At the time, police accused him of posing as a young girl and coercing young girls to send sexually explicit photos through social media, then threatening to post the photos on the Internet if more were not provided.

For investigators, knowing that kids go from "real nasty, abusive situations," to getting out and getting counselling is what matters, said Nayor. "You feel like superman, you really do."

Over the eight years prior to this sweep, the strategy led to the charges against 2,617 people.

Naylor could not say how many of those arrested were found guilty, but says the conviction rate is high in these investigations.

Quoted

"When people are outed as part of this kind of world they are very quick to own up to it because they don't want the possibility of a long, drawn-out trial."

Ministry cuts ties to border agency after migrant blitz

Ontario Transportation Minister Steven Del Duca has cut his ministry's ties with the Canada Border Services Agency for the foreseeable future.

Del Duca spokesperson Patrick Searle said Thursday operational relations with the federal agency have been suspended while his ministry reviews a controversial incident last month when immigration officials rounded up undocumented workers during a roadside commercial vehicle check.

"There will no longer be blitzes with the CBSA as the review is ongoing," he said.

Steven Del Duca
TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

"I have been told the review period should be wrapping up in the next few weeks," he said referring to the internal ministry probe.

On Aug. 14, Canada Border Services Agency officers used a commercial vehicle roadside blitz along Wilson Ave., between Jane St. and Hwy. 400, to arrest 21 undocumented workers. Immigrant advocates and a critic denounced the province for playing along with immigration officials in what was supposed to be a routine roadside check.

In the meantime, No One Is Illegal, a migrant justice organization, has filed a complaint to the Ontario ombudsman urging a public investigation into what it says amounted to racial profiling, and anti-migrant detentions. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Mandate letters. Environment Minister instructed to take hard line on polluters

Cut pollution and cut costs.

Those are the marching orders from Premier Kathleen Wynne to her cabinet in mandate letters made public Thursday for the first time in Ontario.

Following the lead of other provinces, such as Alberta, Wynne wants residents to know what their cabinet members are doing — or supposed to be doing.

"There aren't too many surprises in them," Wynne, who was re-elected with a majority government on June 12, acknowledged after a cabinet retreat in Sudbury.

Ontario Premier Kathleen Wynne
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Environment Minister Glen Murray has been instructed to take a hard line on polluters.

"Your ministry will put greater emphasis on prevention and on the 'polluter pays' principle, focusing initially on contaminated sites," Wynne wrote to Murray.

Treasury Board President Deb Matthews has been told, "You will drive efficiencies and reduce costs" to eliminate the deficit, which sits at $12.5 billion this year, by 2017-18.

With civil service contract talks looming, Matthews was ordered to make sure "any modest wage increases negotiated are absorbed by employers ... through efficiency and productivity gains or other trade-offs." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

John Tory gets a boost from Lucky Moose

David Chen. Food store owner who was arrested trying to make citizen's arrest on shoplifter, had help with legal problems by Tory rival Olivia Chow

Lucky Moose Food Market owner David Chen says he is endorsing John Tory for mayor — not Olivia Chow — because he is best placed to fix problems plaguing Chinatown.

In 2009, Chen was thrust into the national spotlight after he was arrested for attempting to make a citizen's arrest on a serial shoplifter. He was acquitted, but public outrage prompted Ottawa to amend legislation reinforcing the right of business owners to protect their property.

Standing beside Chen in Chinatown, Tory said he's delighted by the endorsement of someone he called a "leader" who stood up for himself "and brought about real change."

Asked why he is backing Tory, when Chow helped him with his legal problems, Chen said she wasn't the only person helping his case.

"It's so many persons," Chen told reporters.

Tory campaign aides distributed photocopies of Chow posing for pictures with Chen and standing in the House of Commons, apparently addressing the so-called Lucky Moose bill.

"It's an election and people make choices. She respects his," Chow spokesman Jamey Heath wrote in email.

GO-ing for it. Ontario buys track with aim of smoother commute for Kitchener

The province has bought a key stretch of CN rail track west of Georgetown that will eventually help GO Transit run more trains for Kitchener commuters.

The $76-million CN Guelph subdivision runs 53 kilometres west of Georgetown to Kitchener.

Metrolinx, the provincial agency in charge of GO Transit, which already owns the track between Union Station and Brampton, has also purchased land in Kitchener on which to build a train layover facility.

The province is trying to buy up as much GO track as possible to implement its regional express rail plan, whereby GO would run electric trains with frequencies of up to 15 minutes. The Liberal government has committed to electrifying all GO-owned tracks within a decade.

"By increasing Metrolinx's ownership along the Kitchener rail corridor, GO Transit will be able to improve service, control operations and make infrastructure upgrades needed to support service expansion, including more inbound trains to Kitchener and evening outbound trains back to Toronto," said a government press release on Wednesday.

But CN still owns a piece of the Kitchener line between Brampton and Georgetown.

"This section is part of CN's core freight network and is not currently available for purchase," according to Metrolinx.

Spokesperson Anne Marie Aikins said the province is committed to electrifying GO, but says "it will not happen overnight." Electric trains can accelerate and brake faster than diesel, making it easier to step up the frequency.

Commuters are anxious for the all-day, two-way service Queen's Park has promised, said NDP MPP Catherine Fife (Kitchener-Waterloo).

"While 53 kilometres of new track is a start ... it does not change the fact that they still cannot tell residents of Kitchener-Waterloo when GO trains will start arriving from Toronto in the morning," she said in a press release.

Other stretches of track that GO has yet to acquire include the Milton line, which is CP's main freight corridor, and the CP- and CN-owned stretch west of Burlington that runs into Hamilton. CN also owns the Richmond Hill line south of Langstaff to Richmond Hill.

Kitchener to T.O. on GO

At present, GO runs only two Toronto-bound trains departing from Kitchener in the morning, and two returning there from Union Station in the afternoon rush. Metrolinx has said it will double that in 2016.

Sept. 19 edition

Correction: C'est What pours true

A story about the federal government cracking down on bars that advertise a pint of beer but fail to pour a full 20 ounces of suds, published in Metro on Sept. 19, contained an editing error about C'est What?'s beer pour.

According to C'est What? president George Milbrandt, the Front Street establishment actually advertises a 550-millilitre size, and has a line indicating the 550-millilitre point (19.35 fl. oz. in imperial measurements).

Metro regrets the error.

ALL IN A NIGHT'S WORK AT THE TTC

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

We are often asked why the TTC subway does not run all night and why it doesn't open until 9 a.m. on Sundays.

The reason is that we need every minute of the few hours available overnight to carry out essential maintenance and to undertake safety checks of critical equipment. Unlike some other systems, New York City being a good example, we do not have the luxury of additional tracks to enable 24-hour service.

As we progressively upgrade track and signals, we will look to extend subway operating hours. As an alternative, the TTC does provide the Blue Night Network, where bus and streetcar night service crisscrosses the city on 22 routes.

Every night, TTC crews fan out across the network to undertake an array of tasks after subway service concludes at 1:30 a.m. Track and signals workers patrol the track to ensure everything is ready for morning service and to fix defects that have been reported the previous day. Teams of janitors scrub and sweep stations and carry out light maintenance, while technicians work on our fleet of escalators and elevators.

In the subway and Scarborough RT carhouses, crews prepare the trains for morning service, a scene that is replicated in our streetcar barns.

Meanwhile, our seven bus garages and Wheel-Trans facility are also hives of activity. There are more than 1,800 vehicles that need to be fuelled, cleaned and washed in just a few short hours, a task that relies on excellent teamwork between operators and service crews. In the Transit Control Centre, our team prepares for the morning start up. Safety of work crews is paramount and work sites must be clear before service begins for the day.

After just a few short hours, operators take trains, streetcars and buses back into service at 6 a.m. to once again begin the task of transporting you, our customer, aboard North America's third largest transit network.

EMPLOYEE PROFILE

Name: Vic Galbraith
Position: Rail Vehicle Analyzer
Years of Service: 40

I started my career in 1974 at Greenwood Carhouse. My duties have included Sweeper, Subway Yard Operator and Swing Dispatcher. After completing the TTC Electrical Program I became a Rail Vehicle Analyzer working on all types of subway cars. I take great pride in upholding the TTC's tradition of "Public Safety First." I would like to thank the TTC and my fellow Brothers and Sisters at the Greenwood Carhouse for 40 wonderful years.

RESTRICTED SPEED ZONES ON LINE 1

Since early September, train service south of Davisville Station has been slower than usual due to TTC signal, switch and track bed upgrades. In order to maintain a safe and reliable service, the TTC will close the subway in the area on some weekends, for example, to upgrade the old equipment.

The closures that occurred on Aug. 23-24 and Sept. 6-7 allowed crews to remove old switches and replace them with the latest technology. In order to protect the work site, train speeds were reduced between Davisville and St Clair stations. With new equipment now in place, the restricted speed zone has been lifted.

Two more subway closures are scheduled for Oct.18-19 and Nov. 1-2 for work between Davisville and Eglinton stations. As we approach the October closure, customers will notice a restricted speed zone north of Davisville Station. Regular service in the area will resume on Nov. 15.

Nuit Blanche Day Pass now on sale!

The TTC's Special Event Nuit Blanche Day Pass is now on sale at all collector booths. For just $11, the Nuit Blanche Day Pass provides unlimited travel for a group of up to six people, maximum two adults over 19, from the start of service on Saturday, Oct. 4, until 9 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 5. Get yours early and avoid the line-ups.

TTC LOST ARTICLES OFFICE

If you've left something behind on the TTC, there's a good chance we have it. Every day, TTC staff gather items left on vehicles and in subway stations, and send them to the Lost Articles Office at Bay Station for storage. Each item is recorded in a database so it's easy to find.

Recently, we've been noticing more bikes than ever before. If you think you may have left your bike on one of our bus bike racks, please contact the Lost Articles Office, which is located in Bay Station and is open to the public from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday to Friday, except holidays. You can also call us at 416-393-4100, Monday to Friday, noon to 5 p.m. (except holidays).

Please note that Bay Station is not an accessible subway station. If you are travelling with a mobility device or have difficulty accessing the TTC Lost Articles Office, please call in advance for assistance.

Did you know ...

Last Friday, Sept. 12, saw the TTC set a one-day record ridership of 1,812,031, surpassing the last record (1,806,502) set on Nov. 28, 2013.

Abandoned trailer. Sitting at least three days, juices of 37,000 pounds of rotting chicken dripped along Montana truck stop's parking lot

An Idaho truck driver abandoned his delivery truck after his employer refused to pay him more money. The cargo of 37,000 pounds of chicken, worth about $80,000, was left sitting rancid at a Montana truck stop at least three days.
MARTIN KIDSTON/THE MISSOULIAN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A truck dripping rancid juices from thousands of pounds of rotting chicken sat in the heat attracting flies Thursday at a western Montana truck stop, where an Idaho trucking company employee abandoned it at least three days earlier.

The driver left the trailer containing approximately 37,000 pounds of frozen chicken near the Flying J Truck Stop west of Missoula after the company refused his requests for more money, authorities said. The chicken was worth $80,000.

The truck was discovered Tuesday, though it's unclear exactly how long it had been there.

The driver reportedly texted Dixie River Freight Inc. several times, saying he needed more money.

When the company refused to pay him until he delivered the load, he apparently abandoned the trailer at the truck stop, according to police in Nampa, Idaho.

On Thursday, the trailer was surrounded by sawhorses, crime scene tape and flies at the truck stop as temperatures threatened to reach 90 F (32 C) for a second straight day.

Alisha Johnson with the Missoula City-County Health Department said Dixie River's insurance company was in charge of cleaning up the mess — and it's not a simple job.

It involves getting the landfill prepared to receive the load, Johnson told the Missoulian on Thursday.

"They'll probably have to dig a separate hole for this."

"There's a possibility of refreezing the trailer, but that could make it harder to offload if it's frozen together," she said.

Shannon Therriault, environmental health supervisor with the health department, said it would be nice to be able move it just once.

"People don't want rotting chicken juice all over their cars if it's transported down the highway or down the roadway," Therriault told KECI-TV. "There are things that are in raw chicken that can make you sick, and we don't want someone to incidentally get it on their hands and then ingest it."

Nampa police are searching for the truck driver but had not released any information by early Thursday afternoon.

Detroit

Canadian turtle smuggler charged

A Canadian man has been charged after border agents at the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel said they found more than 50 turtles strapped to his body and hidden between his legs.

The Detroit News reported that Kai Xu was charged Wednesday with smuggling, illegal trading and exporting. He appeared in federal court in Detroit on Thursday.

Authorities found the turtles after Xu's SUV recrossed the border and was stopped in Windsor, where Xu reportedly resides.

Orphaned moose. Calf without its mother after Wyoming park accident

Photographers and wildlife watchers in Grand Teton National Park have been getting too close to moose during mating season, likely contributing to the death of an agitated cow moose near the Gros Ventre campground, park officials said.

Park spokeswoman Jackie Skaggs said the combination of a rutting bull moose, park visitors and photographers led an agitated cow moose to run, stumble over a picnic table and land in a fire grate, where her hind leg was nearly severed. Rangers euthanized the female moose Wednesday morning. She left behind a yearling calf.

"The calf was not injured in the commotion during this crush of people, but we're not sure whether the calf will survive the winter without her mother," Skaggs said.

Retired U.S. Forest Service ranger Anne Huebner of Idaho, who had been staying at the campground for a couple of days, said people were getting too close to the animals. Park rules prohibit people from getting closer than 25 yards to a moose. The limit is 100 yards for bear and wolves.

Woman punched by officer settles for $1.5 million

A woman punched repeatedly by a California Highway Patrol officer on the side of a freeway in an incident caught on video July 1 by a passing driver will receive $1.5 million US in a settlement, and the officer has agreed to resign.

Marlene Pinnock, diagnosed with bipolar disorder, had been off her medication for two to three months before the altercation.

The bulk of the settlement will take the form of a special-needs trust for Pinnock, the CHP said.

Officer Daniel Andrew, who joined the CHP in 2012, has been on paid administrative leave since the incident. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cancer patient buried alive?

Police in northern Greece are investigating a cemetery worker's testimony that a woman revived in her grave shortly after being buried and called for help, only to die before she could be extracted.

Police officials say the man and two people visiting the Peraia cemetery outside Thessaloniki said they heard banging and a muffled call from inside the 49-year-old cancer patient's grave late Thursday, an hour after her funeral.

By the time the coffin was dug up and smashed open, the woman showed no further signs of life. The mother of two had been first declared dead at a private clinic early Thursday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winnipeg police confirm officers had contact with Tina Fontaine a day before the 15-year-old girl was last seen alive. WINNIPEG POLICE SERVICE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Officers saw missing girl day before she disappeared

Tina Fontaine. Winnipeg police are looking into why the 15-year-old was not taken into custody

Winnipeg police confirmed Thursday that two officers came across Tina Fontaine the day before she disappeared and one week before her body was pulled from the Red River. Fontaine, 15, was in a vehicle police pulled over on Aug. 8, more than a week after she was reported missing, but she was not taken into custody.

Police set up a news conference to respond to a report from CTV that said Fontaine was a passenger in a vehicle along with a man who was arrested on suspicion of being impaired. "The two officers have been reassigned to non-operational duties," police Chief Devon Clunis said.

Fontaine's great-aunt, Thelma Favel, said Thursday social workers told her that on the night of Aug. 8 — which would be a few hours after police came across Fontaine — Fontaine had passed out in an alley downtown and paramedics took her to a nearby hospital. "They kept her there for about three or four hours until she sobered up a little bit and then (social workers) picked her up from the hospital." That appears to have been the last time she was seen alive.

Child and Family Services has launched an internal investigation into the case as well, but Favel is not expecting anything will change. She said she has received a $500 bill in the mail for Fontaine's ambulance ride to the hospital. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Running away

Tina Fontaine had spent much of her life with her great-aunt, Thelma Favel, on the Sagkeeng First Nation, 75 kilometres northeast of Winnipeg.

- She had a history of running away and went to Winnipeg about a month before her death to visit her biological mother.

Just 'digging around' in N. Korean prison

Matthew Miller. U.S. man sentenced to six years of hard labour says he mostly does agricultural work

An American man recently sentenced by North Korea to six years of hard labour says he is digging in fields eight hours a day and being kept in isolation, but that so far his health isn't deteriorating.

Under close guard and with only enough time to answer one question, 24-year-old Matthew Miller spoke briefly to The Associated Press at a Pyongyang hotel where he had been brought to call his family.

It was his first appearance since he was convicted Sept. 14 of entering the country illegally to commit espionage.

"Prison life is eight hours of work per day. Mostly it's been agriculture, like in the dirt, digging around," Miller said when asked what conditions were like in prison.

"Other than that, it's isolation, no contact with anyone. But I have been in good health, and no sickness or no hurts," he said, showing little emotion.

At Miller's 90-minute trial, North Korea's Supreme Court said Miller tore up his tourist visa upon arriving in Pyongyang on April 10 and declared his ambition to experience prison life so he could secretly investigate North Korea's human rights situation.

Miller is one of three Americans detained in North Korea. Jeffrey Fowle, who was arrested in May for leaving a Bible at a sailor's club, is expected to be tried in court soon. Kenneth Bae was sentenced in 2013 to 15 years of hard labour.

Last week, Robert King, the U.S. special envoy for North Korean human rights issues, said Pyongyang has not accepted American offers to send a high-level envoy to seek release of the three men.

McGill football star charged in domestic-violence incident

Luis-Andres Guimont-Mota. Running back accused of assault, uttering threats, but lawyer says he was the victim, not aggressor

The lawyer for a star McGill University football player charged in an alleged case of domestic violence says his client was the victim and not the aggressor.

Luis-Andres Guimont-Mota, 22, was formally arraigned in Montreal on Thursday on charges of assault and uttering threats against his estranged wife. He was immediately released on $300 bail and a host of conditions.

The third-year business management student and starting running back was arrested at a downtown apartment on Wednesday morning.

By late that evening, McGill said the player in question had been immediately suspended as per the university's varsity athletics guidelines.

"What's particular in this case is my client is the victim and not the aggressor, contrary to the cases in the United States," said defence lawyer Steve Hanafi, referring to a spate of domestic violence cases involving NFL players.

Hanafi said the university was too hasty in suspending Guimont-Mota from the football team and that he and his client would challenge the decision.

"I think they acted too fast just to protect their image and they don't know the facts," he told reporters.

Hanafi said Guimont-Mota is considering filing a cross-complaint against his estranged wife, the alleged victim in the current case. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newborn health. Canada to help set up global fund

Prime Minister Stephen Harper has announced that Canada will contribute to a new international fund to prevent maternal and newborn deaths.

He and representatives of several national governments announced their plans to help set up a $4-billion US fund, to be run by the World Bank.

The Global Financing Facility will aim to get private-sector money as well to help reduce mortality rates, and to create better information-gathering systems to track progress.

Harper made the announcement at the United Nations, pledging $200 million in Canadian money, which will flow from the $3.5 billion he promised earlier this year.

Cybersecurity. Fraud the No. 1 online crime in 2012

Statistics Canada says police reported 9,084 incidents of cybercrime in 2012, more than half of which involved fraud.

The agency says very few online fraudsters were identified by police.

About 20 per cent of cybercrimes involved threats, with suspects identified in 55 per cent of the cases.

About 16 per cent of reported cybercrimes, or 1,441 incidents, involved sexual matters, including luring and child porn.

Police identified suspects in 31 per cent of cyber-related sexual violations and laid charges in 25 per cent of the incidents.

Overall, there were 33 cybercrimes reported for every 100,000 in the population. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tiger killed in cat fight at zoo

A group of high school students got a real-life lesson in wild animal behaviour Thursday when they witnessed part of a fatal fight between two tigers at a Winnipeg zoo.

Officials with the Assiniboine Park Zoo said an older Siberian male tiger pushed open a mistakenly unlocked gate and stepped into a neighbouring den housing two younger male cats.

One of the younger tigers then attacked the older one and, although the fight took place at the rear of the enclosure, it happened in view of any visitors who happened to be at the tiger exhibit.

Margaret Redmond, president of the Assiniboine Zoo Conservancy, told reporters that the students were on a class trip with a teacher.

No visitors were in any danger at any time, she said, and a review of the incident is underway.

The zoo's chief veterinarian, Dr. Chris Enright, said the 19-year-old tiger who died was named Baikal and had been at the zoo for about five years.

The neighbouring den houses a pair of younger tigers, two-year-old brothers named Samkha and Vasili.

Vasili, the one who killed Baikal, was likely defending his turf, said Enright.

"Any tiger — they're a 350-pound predator — has the potential to act aggressively in defence of itself," he said.

Video apology. Brown's body lay in street too long, police chief admits

The police chief in the St. Louis suburb where an officer fatally shot an unarmed 18-year-old last month released a video Thursday apologizing to the family and the community, acknowledging that Michael Brown's body remained in the street for too long after he was killed.

Brown, who was black, was fatally shot Aug. 9 during a confrontation with a white police officer.

Brown's body remained in the street for more than four hours. At the time, police said they needed the time to gather evidence.

The video featuring Ferguson police Chief Tom Jackson was released on the same day Brown's parents were in Washington pressing for a federal investigation into the shooting.

Iraq. ISIS militants torture and publicly execute female human rights lawyer

Militants with the Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham tortured and then publicly killed a human rights lawyer in the Iraqi city of Mosul after their self-proclaimed religious court ruled that she had abandoned Islam, the UN mission in Iraq said Thursday.

Gunmen with the group's newly declared police force seized Samira Salih al-Nuaimi last week in a northeastern district of Mosul while she was home with her husband and three children, two people with direct knowledge of the incident told The Associated Press. Al-Nuaimi was taken to a secret location. After about five days, the family was called by the morgue to retrieve her corpse, which bore signs of torture, the two people said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

According to the United Nations Assistance Mission in Iraq, her arrest was allegedly connected to Facebook messages she posted that were critical of the militants' destruction of religious sites in Mosul. A statement by the UN on Thursday added that al-Nuaimi was tried in a so-called Sharia court for apostasy, after which she was tortured for five days before the militants sentenced her to public execution. Her Facebook page appears to have been removed since her death.

Al-Nuaimi's death is the latest in a string of attacks by the militant group to silence female activists and politicians.

Hanaa Edwar, a prominent Iraqi human rights activist, said at least five female political activists have been killed in recent weeks by ISIS in Mosul, including al-Nuaimi, who Edwer said was also running for a seat on the provincial council.

Iraqi PM claims ISIS plans to bomb New York and Paris

Iraq's prime minister said Thursday that captured Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham militants have told Iraqi intelligence agents of an alleged plot to attack subways in the United States and Paris, but French and American officials said they had no such information.

A senior Obama administration official said no one in the U.S. government is aware of such a plot, adding that the claim was never brought up in meetings with Iraqi officials this week in New York.

UAE's first female fighter pilot leads airstrikes on ISIS

Syria. United Arab Emirates ambassador calls Maj. Mariam al-Mansouri 'highly trained and combat ready'

Mariam al-Mansouri, the first Emirati female fighter jet pilot gives the thumbs-up as she sits in the cockpit of an aircraft, in United Arab Emirates in 2013. EMIRATES NEWS AGENCY/WAM/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first female air force pilot in the United Arab Emirates led airstrikes against Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham militants in Syria earlier this week, the federation's ambassador to Washington said on Thursday as he pledged his country will do "whatever is necessary" to defeat the militant group.

Social media has been buzzing with rumours that F-16 pilot Maj. Mariam al-Mansouri played a part in attacks against the jihadist group, with many users taking delight in the rebuke it implied toward the militants' ultraconservative ideology.

Ambassador Yousef al-Otaiba's comments were the first public confirmation of her role.

"She is a fully qualified, highly trained, combat-ready pilot, and she led the mission," al-Otaiba said during an appearance on American cable channel MSNBC's Morning Joe.

The Emirates, a seven-state federation that includes the capital of Abu Dhabi and the Mideast commercial hub of Dubai, is one of five Arab countries that have joined the U.S.-led coalition carrying out the airstrikes in Syria.

Al-Mansouri was born in Abu Dhabi and graduated from the country's Khalifa bin Zayed Air College in 2007, according to a profile earlier this year in the government-owned newspaper The National.

Emirati leaders have taken steps to raise the status of women in the oil-rich country, which has modernized rapidly since its formation in 1971 and is now home to a cosmopolitan blend of foreign businesspeople, expatriate professionals and low-paid migrant workers who together far outnumber the local population.

Al-Otaiba linked al-Mansouri's role to the campaign to defeat ISIS.

"Do you want a model or a society that allows women to become ministers in government, female fighter pilots, business executives, artists? Or do you want a society where if a woman doesn't cover up in public she's beaten or she's lashed or she's raped? This is ultimately what this breaks down to," he said.

It is important that moderate Arab and Muslim nations take a stand against Islamic State of Iraq and al-Sham militants, al-Otaiba said, describing the group as "a threat to our way of life." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Napoleon, left, and Antosia at a zoo in Poznan, Poland, in 2010. JOANNA PIECHOROWSKA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Donkey couple reunited amid brou-hee-haw

Poland. Citizens outraged after public love-making at zoo caused Napoleon, Antosia to be separated

Napoleon is now back with his Antosia.

The two amorous donkeys who were separated because of an outcry over their love-making have been reunited at a zoo in Poland.

The couple, together for 10 years, got into trouble when mothers expressed outrage that children had to witness their mating. Local conservative official Lydia Dudziak took up their cause and persuaded the director of the zoo in Poznan to have the animals put in separate pens.

Quoted

"Animals separated by sex into different cages? It's complete idiocy."

Stefan Niesiolowski, lawmaker with the Polish governing party, Civic Platform

The zoo acknowledged making a mistake Thursday and said the donkeys are again in one pen after about a week apart. "It was never our intention for any animals to feel uncomfortable because of their natural behaviours," the zoo said in a statement.

The interruption of the long-standing romance turned into a national news item in Poland in the past days. Nearly 7,000 people signed a petition to have them reunited.

Experts weighed in, saying the separation could hurt their psychological well-being. Politicians were asked about it on the country's leading news programs.

In their decade together, Napoleon and Antosia have produced six offspring.

Gambler saved from prison by a one-armed bandit

Police said Thursday that two officers carrying out routine checks at an arcade in Bochum, Germany, late last week discovered that a man playing a slot machine faced an arrest warrant.

He had been ordered to pay a 710-euro ($1,005) fine or go to prison for 71 days after resisting police during a previous incident.

Police said that as officers informed the man that he faced arrest, the slot machine started to flash and the 37-year-old won a jackpot of 1,000 euros. The man paid his fine on the spot — in cash. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The business of running

The Scotiabank Toronto Waterfront Marathon takes over the majority of the downtown as 25,000 runners take part in October 2013. RICK MADONIK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Who will win the race? After a slow start, the running event biz has hit its stride — but now it's do-or-die time for organizers scrapping it out

MELISSA DUNNE
melissa.dunne@metronews.ca

A sea of hipsters wait in T-shirts, headbands and sunglasses. Soon, their bright white shirts will look like the inside of a Skittles bag.

They look pleased. After all, most paid about $60 a pop to be popped with brightly coloured powder during a five-kilometre run earlier this month in downtown Vancouver.

Across town, another sea of runners in rainbow-bright clothes and shoes are readying for a timed 10-km road race.

It's clearly do-or-die time for running event organizers scrapping it out in the booming running events business.

It wasn't always this way.

Back in 1963 at Calgary's first marathon, a mere 19 men showed up, and only 12 finished. This year, more than 15,000 people took part. In 1975, 144 men and two women ran Ottawa's marathon. This May, 4,436 men and 2,599 women ran the marathon. And overall, 47,827 people participated in six events during Ottawa Race Weekend.

It's the same story coast-to-coast. While it took years for traditional road races to slowly build up their events, new events seem to have quickly sprinted to the head of the pack.

The Color Run, LLC held its first event in Arizona in 2012. In 2013, the for-profit company hosted roughly 170 events in more than 30 countries.

The Color Run (which has not added a U in deference to our spelling) held five events in Canada in 2013. This year, it grew to eight events, and plans to expand again next year.

About 60 per cent of participants in the untimed "fun runs" are first-time runners, according to a Color Run spokesperson.

The for-profit Tough Mudder LLC tends to attract more seasoned runners. Since it started in 2010, more than 100 Tough Mudders have been held around the globe. The 18- to 20-km events include obstacles such as: mud, freezing-cold ice, electricity and fire. A cross-section of CrossFitters, gym rats and runners in Canada have plunked down about $139.99 to $199.99 (plus fees and taxes) to take part in the gruelling event. In 2012, the business co-founded by a Harvard Business School grad brought in $70 million US in revenue, according to New York Magazine.

Alan Brookes, the director of the Canada Running Series Inc., is not worried about all the new competition.

"We're passionate believers in doing one thing well," says Brookes from Vancouver, where he was hosting the Vancouver Eastside 10K. "We are sticking to the traditional, complete road race and leaving the mud and colour to others."

The for-profit Canada Running Series holds a total of eight races in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver every year. Its marquee event, the Scotiabank Toronto Waterfront Marathon (STWM), has hit its stride — celebrating 25 years this year and on pace to hit record numbers of participants.

The STWM began as the Coors Light Toronto Half-Marathon — part of a "six-pack" of races in a nod to the sponsor.

In 1990, about 1,500 people took part. In the last five years the number of participants at the STWM (which now includes a 5-km run, half-marathon and full marathon) has risen almost 400 per cent, with about 25,000 expected on Oct. 19.

Lately, it's condo-dwelling millennials of both genders that are pushing the phenomenal growth, Brookes says.

And companies are jockeying for a prominent spot at these events so they can market their product or brand to the swelling crowds of young, fit and well-heeled runners. Brands have such a strong presence that some runs look like NASCAR races.

Being a part of these feel-good events is worth a lot to companies.

In 2008, Richard Branson's group paid about $30 million in a five-year deal to sponsor London's not-for-profit marathon. It's now called the Virgin Money London Marathon.

Eye-popping deals like that seem to have encouraged a slew of newbies to give putting on an event a shot. Many quickly hit a wall.

Earlier this month, Runner's World Magazine reported some theme and obstacle events have failed lately, with insiders pointing to "organizer's inexperience and unanticipated costs."

Heather Wall has experienced what she says was a poorly executed event firsthand.

The über-fit Ottawa mom runs in about a dozen events per year, including the Canada Army Run in Ottawa last weekend. Two years ago she tried a local obstacle endurance event.

"It was not well organized," says Wall. "It left a bad taste in my mouth."

Among other things, she says it was not clear the event was solely a for-profit venture and she worried about the safety of runners as she believes there was not sufficient medical help on site.

"I'm glad I did it, but I would never do it again," says Wall.

A safe event is something runners like Wall keep top-of-mind.

In 2012, a man drowned at a Tough Mudder in West Virginia. The death was ruled accidental. The man's family have since filed a lawsuit.

In the mad dash to cash in, some of these events will trip up and drop out along the way. In the long run, runners like Wall will determine which events get a second wind.

Charity

- Some for-profit runs, like the Canada Running Series, have a separate non-profit foundation. Others donate a small amount of money to charity directly.
- But the majority of money for charity via runs (whether a non-profit or not) is raised by individual runners.

The Running Room

Free clinics mean big money

Every Sunday morning the true believers gather to worship in the running temples John Stanton built.

The former two-pack-a-day smoker started the Running Room in 1984. The first store was literally a room in a house in Edmonton.

Thirty years later, there are about 1,500 staffers and 128 stores in North America.

Since the start, Stanton has preached about inclusiveness and community.

The stores generally run free clinics every Wednesday night and Sunday morning that anyone can attend. Plus, the stores offer several training clinics for $69.99 in Canada, which are sponsored by running shoe companies, such as New Balance and Saucony.

"The clinics are a little bit self-serving," Stanton freely admits in a phone interview from Edmonton. It's a mutually beneficial relationship, he says. Customers get fit and meet like-minded people and the store builds a strong relationship with customers and sells them a new pair of running shoes every now and then.

Competitors are starting to see the light. Vancouver's Lululemon Athletica Inc. and MEC (formerly Mountain Equipment Co-op) are among the growing number of retailers now offering free running groups and sponsoring running events, too.

metro AR Color Me Rad saw well over a thousand people run the five-kilometre race. The running boom has been good to gadget makers. Scan the photo with your Metro News app to see a gallery of the latest products making the rounds among runners.

Is Bash bug worse than Heartbleed?

Uh oh. Experts are divided over whether the latest security flaw will cause more chaos than the Heartbleed bug

New warnings are emerging of a security flaw known as the "Bash" bug, which cyber experts say may pose a serious threat to devices using Unix-based operating systems such as Linux and Mac OS X.

Beyond computers, devices ranging from home Internet routers to systems used to run factory floors and power plants to medical equipment could be affected.

The Department of Homeland Security's Computer Emergency Readiness Team in the U.S. issued a warning about the vulnerability this week. Experts are divided over whether the bug could pose a bigger threat than the "Heartbleed" computer security flaw discovered earlier this year.

Security company Rapid7 said that while the vulnerability "looks pretty awful at first glance," hackers will not be able to exploit most systems running the affected Bash software. The Heartbleed bug exploited a key piece of security technology used by hundreds of thousands of websites. For more than two years before it was discovered, the flaw exposed passwords and other sensitive data to hackers who could steal that information.

The "Bash" bug is rated a maximum 10 out of 10 for its impact and ease of exploitability by the Common Vulnerability Scoring System, an industry standard for assessing how bad security flaws are.

The boomers had Woodstock, millennials get PotatoStock

Zack Brown, the man behind the potato salad Kickstarter campaign is photographed on Sept. 18 in Columbus, Ohio. Brown is planning PotatoStock 2014, an all-ages, charity-minded party Saturday in downtown Columbus featuring bands, food trucks, beer vendors, potato-sack races and definitely potato salad. His effort on Kickstarter in early July to buy potato salad ingredients took on a life of its own and attracted worldwide attention as the amount grew. The 31-year-old jokingly sought $10 US from the crowdfunding website to pay for his first attempt at making potato salad and eventually raised $55,492. New report. Forcing a pick-and-pay TV model futile, is coming anyway

Forcing TV service providers to offer their customers television channels on a pick-and-pay basis would be a waste of time, a new study says.

The C.D. Howe Institute report released Thursday says ever-changing technology will soon put viewers squarely in the driver's seat, allowing them to choose everything they watch one program at a time.

And it suggests it would be better for regulators to determine whether broadcasters should continue to be required to fund the production of Canadian content.

The study also opposes the idea of forcing new video-distribution services, such as Netflix, to pay into funds that subsidize such content.

America. Drones to be used for moviemaking get thumbs up from the FAA

The U.S. government granted six movie and television production companies permission to use drones for filming, an important step toward greater use of the technology by commercial operators, Transportation Secretary Anthony Foxx announced Thursday.

Dozens of other industries are lined up to follow Hollywood's lead. Until now, the Federal Aviation Administration, which is part of the Transportation Department, had banned commercial drone operations with the exception of a lone oil company in Alaska.

However, the FAA permits come with limitations, including that the unmanned aircraft be used only in a restricted area and that they be flown under 400 feet in altitude and within the line of sight of an operator who holds a private pilot's license. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

iPhone software glitch sends Apple shares down 3%

Shares of Apple Inc. are down more than 3 per cent as a glitch in an iPhone software update garnered more headlines.

The software update caused some customers' new iPhone models to block calls. Apple offered a fix for the issue on Wednesday, telling customers to manually reverse the update by plugging the phone into a computer and to download a file.

Shares of the Cupertino, Calif.-based company fell $3.21 (all figures US), or 3.2 per cent, to $98.54 Thursday. Shares hit an all-time high of $103.74 earlier this month. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Energy boost. Scientists add shine to solar power with golden molecule

Tired of your cellphone's low-battery light blinking as you stand helpless on a downtown corner?

Giovanni Fanchini says he has the fix.

Fanchini and other Western University scientists have turned 144 atoms of gold into a molecule that's proven to increase solar cell performance by more than 10 per cent.

And, Fanchini says, it could come to valuable use in the form of solar-powered phones in as few as five years.

"Every time you recharge your cell phone, you have to plug it in," says Fanchini, an assistant professor in physics and astronomy. "What if you could charge mobile devices like phones, tablets or laptops on the go?

"Not only would it be convenient, but the potential energy savings would be significant."

There are, of course, other implications of the researchers' work. It has the potential, Fanchini says, to take solar power mainstream and "dramatically decrease the world's dependence on traditional, resource-based sources of energy."

The technology could be fast-tracked and integrated into prototypes of solar panels in one to two years, he says, noting the team is already working with manufacturers of solar components.

So what exactly did Fanchini and his team do? Well, it's a golden idea.

They used "gold nanoclusters" to create a flexible network of antennae on traditional solar panels. The benefit comes as those golden rabbit ears attract more light.

"Picture an extremely delicate fishnet of gold," explains Fanchini, noting that the antennae are so minuscule they go unseen even with a conventional optical microscope.

"The fishnet catches the light emitted by the sun and draws it into the active region of the solar cell."

Great apes enjoy harp music at Minnesota zoo every month

Harpist Terri Tacheny long enjoyed taking her young daughters to Como Zoo in St. Paul, Minn., except for the Primate House, where she thought the gorillas, orangutans and monkeys seemed a little lethargic.

Her solution: A little music.

Now Tacheny, a zoo volunteer, plays once a month for an appreciative audience that ambles down to the barrier as soon as Tacheny begins setting up her beautifully carved wooden harp. She's been doing it for nearly a decade.

As the shimmering sounds of Tacheny's harp drift through the leafy zoo, a male gorilla stares through the fence at the musician, then chews contentedly on vegetation. Families stop to snap pictures.

Quoted

"I don't speak gorilla, but there's a gorilla purr that occurs when I begin to play. And that's their happy sound."
Harpist Terri Tacheny

A therapeutic harpist, Tacheny plays for hospital patients to help them deal with pain and anxiety. She thought if the soothing sounds helped to calm humans, it would work for the primates too.

Tami Murphy, a zookeeper at Como, said Tacheny has played for all the animals at the zoo. Some animals appear ambivalent, Murphy said, but the harp music "seems to be a really calming thing for the apes to listen."

Tacheny says she's never gotten a negative review from her ape audience. "I've never had anything thrown at me," she said.

Gone are the days where losing something on a plane is an unfortunate vacation-ruining event. And the thanks go to KLM, who have added an adorable and service-savvy beagle to sniff out an item's wayward owners at Amsterdam's Schiphol airport. Book your flight today! UPDATE: This ad is a fake. It's too late for me, but save yourselves. Hopefully, Amsterdam is nice this time of year. (KLM/YouTube)

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Denzel Washington returns to the action genre with The Equalizer. Scan this photo using the Metro News app to see the movie's fast-paced trailer. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Washington plays a home improvement store worker by day, righter of wrongs by night. He's a former black ops commando trying to leave his violent ways in the past but just when he thought that part of his life was over, the Russian mob leans on him because he tried to protect a young woman (Chloë Grace Moretz) from her violent pimp. When he singlehandedly wipes out the East Coast wing of the Russian mob, Teddy (Marton Csokas) — an enforcer from Moscow — arrives to put an end to McCall's one-man search for justice.

The Equalizer. Denzel Washington's acting chops carry this thriller about a man with a regular life who is pretty talented in using tools as weapons of mass destruction

Richard: Mark, The Equalizer is more elegant than Liam Neeson's recent action movies but less viscerally satisfying.

All the elements of Neeson's Eurotrash thrillers are in place — tattooed bad guys and the "seasoned" hero with a "special set of skills" — but the pace is much slower. The point of the story is that McCall equalizes situations, using his talents to help the downtrodden, but it takes about 30 minutes before any settling of scores happens.

We meet McCall, learn about his orderly life but we don't learn anything about his past. He's Denzel and ergo, a badass, but the first half-hour of this movie could have snapped things up a bit by illuminating his past.

Mark: Richard, withholding information must be what passes for suspense in this thriller.

But I can accept a slow burn off the top if the rest of the movie ignites.

But the plot and tone of the movie is standard stuff, as you say. What lifts the rote material into the stratosphere is Denzel, who is such a good actor we forget we're watching an expensive Steven Seagal flick.

RC: It is a slow burn that does build some tension, and by the time McCall unleashes hell on the Russian mobsters, it comes as a bit of a catharsis. Now the movie is rolling!

Except that it isn't.

It takes ages for McCall to open another can of whoop-ass. Instead director Antoine Fuqua has elected to gradually build up to a wild showdown in a massive hardware store.

Who knew those places were so dangerous?

The climax is tense and inventive — apparently there is no home improvement device that cannot be turned into a WMD — but it is a more standard blockbuster-movie ending than you might expect from a movie so stingy with the action in the first hour.

MB: Homeowners ... killing homeowners, as the jingle sorta goes.

I liked the set piece at the end; it was very well directed, and I have no quibble with the technical virtuosity of the movie.

Denzel's tactiturn hero is mysterious and engaging. But when I thought about it, all of the hero's efforts to eliminate the Russian mob in Boston would only result in the ascendancy of the Irish mob. And what's Bill Pullman doing in the movie with three lines?

Time to fire his agent?

RC: Pullman did have the nicer house, though, so I guess that counts for something.

Overall it's a good movie and Denzel is, as always, charismatic and interesting, but as he says, paraphrasing Hemingway, if "the old man gotta be the old man," then The Equalizer gotta be more of an action movie to be completely satisfying.

MB: I might say the violence was often gratuitous, but there's not much of a movie without it.

Genesis Rodriguez is a pretty big nerd

Tusk. Actress says she has a passion for building robots and welding things

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Geeks of the world, you're about to fall in love with Genesis Rodriguez. There's no point in resisting. The actress, appearing in Kevin Smith's totally insane Tusk, used to be part of an all-girl BattleBots team. Her words, not ours.

"We were an all-girls robotics team. We looked like we were kick-ass, cool-ass girls who had ribbons in their hair but were like, 'We're going to kick your ass!'" Rodriguez tells Metro. "We did competitions, like national competitions. We went to the Kennedy Space Center, we went to a convention in Oklahoma. I was involved with the pneumatics of the robot. I wasn't so much into getting the precise degree and cuts of angles and things — I was a welder."

Yes, welding. Rodriguez thinks women have the edge when it comes to that particular trade. "I think girls make better welders than men because we take time with our tacks and our welds, we're detailed and we make it look pretty," she says with a laugh. "It's fun. Just the smell of it is just ... I love the oil. The light, it's hypnotizing. You could be there all day just looking at it. It's kind of cool. But yeah, building robots was super-awesome."

Rodriguez acknowledges that when people first look at her, they might not immediately think "welding" and "robots," but that's their loss. "It's not something that you'd expect, but it was just a fun time. You're actually thinking something in your head and then executing it and actually seeing it done. I think it's just a really cool school program that should be promoted more. And you're having fun with your friends and working on a crocodile robot. How cool is that?

So what was it her kick-ass team created? "Basically, it was really a tough robot, a crocodile," she explains. "It was built at an angle, so it would come under you and just chomp you down into pieces and break you down. So even if you're a bigger robot in size, it could just scoop you from under — trip it and kill it."

And if robots aren't enough for you, she's also an avid Shark Week aficionado, something that helped her build more appreciation for the massive beast at the centre of Tusk, the walrus. "I was watching Shark Week this last time, and I realized that sharks do not mess with walruses. They don't," she says.

Examining Dolan's Oedipal world

Mommy. Director talks about his fascination with mothers and sons and making films about them

ANNE BRODIE
scene@metronews.ca

Mommy, which opens in select theatres next Friday, has been submitted in the best foreign language film category at the Academy Awards. TORSTAR

"I have no culture. I'm ignorant. I have a high school diploma and I've seen eight films."

Quite the admission from Quebec's boy wonder Xavier Dolan who has accrued 36 awards with just five major features since 2009. I Killed My Mother, Heartbeats, Laurence Anyways, Tom at the Farm and his latest Mommy catapulted him onto the world stage at Cannes, four winning major prizes.

Dolan is hands-on in all elements of his films and has a successful acting and voice-over career. Dolan says he has no culture, but it's clear he creates it. And he's just 25.

Mommy finds us in familiar Dolan mother/son territory. The widowed Diane (Anne Dorval) and her violent, mentally ill teenaged son Steve (Antoine-Olivier Pilon) find it hard to function together or integrate into society. They are perpetual youngsters in a love-hate relationship that recalls his 2009 film I Killed My Mother.

"I was ready to go back to mother and sons and I realized I'd never left them," says Dolan. "They'd always been in my movies somehow, sometimes in the background and sometimes in the spotlight. I Killed My Mother was about schemes compared to Mommy, which is really about an existential crisis between two people who love each other more than the world. They love each other so much they cannot live together."

Dolan picked the word Mommy from all the terms for mother as it describes their refusal to grow up. "Mommy is what children call their moms. They don't say ma, or mom or mother except if you're on the Titanic. They say mommy when they're really small. Both Die and Steve are two children; they're just babies. Die is an eternal teenager and Steve just will never be a grown-up; he's a little baby."

Mommy is set in a "fictionalized Canada" in which a parent may deposit an incorrigible child in an institution indefinitely. "The thing about mental illness is that it is unpredictable. Steve doesn't think, 'Well, I'm going to go home and burn the house down.' He's a good kid, but he's a ticking bomb. He does not control his outbursts. It's important for me to portray how unpredictable relationships are when mental illness is in the household."

Dolan stars in the upcoming psychological drama The Elephant Song in which he's confined to a psychiatric hospital. And he's reportedly starring opposite Taylor Lautner in Gus Van Sant's untitled project based on a New Yorker Magazine article.

Not so long ago, Dolan complained of sitting around waiting for the phone to ring and petting his cat. "It sure has changed. First I'm allergic to cats, I stopped doing laundry, I just buy new briefs, I travel so much I don't have time to wash them."

What's sauce for the boss is epic eating

Epic Meal Empire. YouTube stars serve up gut-busting fare on new TV series

The four guys behind Epic Meal Empire have devoured cheeseburger-stuffed lasagna, pizza cupcakes and Tex-Mex sushi. So what's the grossest thing they've ever eaten?

"Dried apricots and dried papayas," says founder Harley Morenstein with disgust.

The Montreal-based kitchen crew genuinely loves calorie-laden comfort food. And after racking up 600 million YouTube views for their Epic Meal Time videos, they're bringing their passion for gut-busting concoctions to the small screen.

In Epic Meal Empire, airing Mondays on FYI, the gang moves to Los Angeles and cooks up artery-clogging fare for "extreme-food clients" — i.e. anyone with an excuse to consume meals that should probably only be eaten once in a lifetime.

The crew, led by "Sauce Boss" Morenstein and his friends Josh Elkin, Ameer Atari and Dave Heuff, sees moving from YouTube to TV as a natural progression.

"I don't mind saying that I like Epic Meal Empire better than Epic Meal Time," declared Morenstein, 29, in an interview.

Back in 2010, he was a substitute high school teacher in his hometown of Montreal when he began experimenting in video production. Epic Meal Time was born when he and his friends created an elaborate "cheat meal" — ironically, amid efforts to promote health and fitness.

From left, Dave Heuff, Harley Morenstein, Ameer Atari and Josh Elkin star in new FYI series Epic Meal Empire, based on their popular YouTube series Epic Meal Time. SHAW MEDIA

"After the first episode, I substituted the following week. The show had gotten a lot of traction," he recalled. "The kids were like, 'Oh sir, I saw you drinking on the Internet!' ... I kind of lost the children that day."

Two weeks later, the number of online views were so staggering that Morenstein quit his teaching job. After hundreds of episodes, two cookbooks and six million YouTube subscribers, the crew turned their attention to TV.

Morenstein said several networks were interested, but in the end they chose "contemporary lifestyle" channel FYI, a recent rebrand of Shaw Media's Twist and A&E's Biography.

"They let us do what we want, which is the best part of being on FYI," he said. "They were the ones that really put the trust in us. They picked up 16 episodes right off the bat. That was enough for us to want to commit to that network.

"Now, the show is exactly what we want. It's something we're proud of. It's hilarious. I think it's an awesome show."

In the first episode, a second-grade teacher invites the guys to make her students a "fantasy meal," a break from eating boring old healthy food. They build a "Taterbot," a giant robot made of Tater Tots, licorice and grilled cheese.

A bigger budget allows the guys to be more imaginative with their meals, but network television has its drawbacks. The Jack Daniel's-guzzling foursome can't drink on camera, which they flout in the premiere by taking a shot off screen. THE CANADIAN PRESS

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Someone was feeding Lohan lines? Say it ain't so

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Depending on who you ask, Lindsay Lohan either had a great first night or a terrible first night during her London stage debut. Previews started this week for David Mamet's Speed-the-Plow, and the first review, from the Daily Beast, is not terribly kind. "On the first night of previews, a work-in-progress feel is to be expected," Nico Hines writes. "But halfway through the second act of Speed-the-Plow, the audience was openly laughing at Lohan's struggle to grasp Mamet's sharp, trademark dialogue." Some audience members had fun with the gaffes, like Rafay Agha, who tweeted, "Major kudos to the woman who was feeding Lindsay Lohan her lines from offstage." But a tweet from one of her fans tells a different story. "According to all attendees of (Speed-the-Plow), Lindsay Lohan owned her part. As if doubt were plausible," writes Peyton Pittman. I just don't know who to believe anymore.

What's a little fur play between friends

Turns out the compulsion to make everything fur-lined in the 1970s was more about function than form — at least at David Bowie's place. According to a new biography by Wendy Leigh, Bowie and his then-wife, Angela, had a four-foot-deep, fur-lined play area in their London flat affectionately dubbed "the pit" that was used for the some spectacular feats of sexual strength. The Bowies "used to have the most amazing orgies at Oakley Street. Everybody f—ing everybody in the pit. Mick Jagger used to come there and be involved with sexual things," Leigh writes. To be fair, though, I feel like Jagger could get business cards printed up that list his profession as "involved with sexual things."

Apple Crisp Muffins.

Fall is the perfect time to incorporate this fruit into your cooking

The smell of baked apples — plus cinnamon and brown sugar — is simply amazing.

Want to fill your house with that delicious goodness?

Bake up a batch of my Apple Crisp Muffins, which deliver all the flavours of a classic crisp in a breakfast-friendly muffin.

Topping

1. In a bowl, combine the rolled oats, brown sugar, flour and melted butter. Set aside.

2. In a skillet, sauté the apples in the butter for about 5 minutes. Allow to cool.

Muffins

1. Preheat the oven to 350 F (180 C). Line a 12-well muffin pan with paper liners.

2. In another bowl, combine the flour, baking powder and cinnamon. Set aside.

3. In another bowl, cream butter and sugar with mixer until light and fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla. Beat until smooth.

4. With a wooden spoon, stir dry ingredients into butter and sugar mixture alternately with the milk. Add the diced apples. Spoon the batter into the wells.

5. Place 3 pieces of uncooked apples on each muffin and top with the oatmeal mixture. Press lightly with your fingers.

6. Bake in the middle of the oven for about 20 to 25 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in the centre of a muffin comes out clean. FOLLOW RICARDO ON SOCIAL MEDIA AND ON RICARDOCUISINE.COM OR SUBSCRIBE TO HIS MAGAZINE'S UP-COMING ENGLISH EDITION, WHICH LAUNCHED THIS SEPTEMBER!

Ingredients

Topping
- 1 cup (250 ml) rolled oats
- 1/3 cup (75 ml) brown sugar
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) unbleached all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) melted butter
- 2 apples, peeled, cored and cut into 36 pieces
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) butter

Muffins
- 1 1/2 cups (375 ml) unbleached all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 tsp (7.5 ml) baking powder
- 1 tsp (5 ml) ground cinnamon
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) unsalted butter, softened
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 tsp (5 ml) vanilla extract
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) milk
- 1 apple, peeled, seeded and diced

This recipe makes about 12 muffins. COURTESY RICARDOCUISINE.COM

Myths of French grapes

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

French wines have an image problem.

No matter how closely associated the country is with fermented grape juice, it struggles to shake the myth that it only makes wine for rich experts and not the average oenophile.

While its wines can get pricey, those big guns make up a paltry percentage of its total output.

You can easily find wine from France for the same price as your fave bottle from Australia or Italy.

Other misconceptions about French wines are that their labels are hard to understand, their flavours are too aggressive and they're only meant to be drunk with food.

Though there may be a wee bit of truth to all three complaints, don't let that intimidate you. Ripe, balanced and fruit-forward, the wines from the southern regions are a great introduction (or reintroduction) to France. The 2012 Petites Folies Merlot-Cabernet ($15.95 - $16.99) takes a page from the New World handbook with juicy, red berry aromas and a thick, jammy flavour flow worthy of your best rack of lamb recipe. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. Return of the Midnight Market

Date: Sept. 26
Location: 2nd Floor Events, 461 King St. W.

Toronto's sexiest evening market soirée returns for a second instalment at 2nd Floor Events on King Street West. It's $5 at the door and once you're in, it's all cash money. With a few drinks and some delicious street-style food, you can peruse and purchase from 20 local hand-picked new and vintage clothing and accessories vendors — all while listening to a soundtrack courtesy of a few killer live DJs. Food, booze, music, shopping, Friday. Is there anything missing?

AGO First Thursdays: Nuit Blanche Sneak Peek

Date: Oct. 2
Location: AGO

First Thursday is turning two years old, and to celebrate, the AGO is teaming up with Scotiabank Nuit Blanche to give avid art-goers a preview of what's to come on la grande nuit. It's a night focusing on artists who push boundaries and experiment with exciting new ideas and approaches. From dancers and DJs to fortune-teller machines and interactive installations, this is one sneak preview you don't want to miss.

Evergreen Urban Rodeo BBQ

Date: Sept. 27
Location: The Brickworks

We don't often say "yee-haw," but when there's this much food and beer on the line, we'll damn near say anything. Show your support for healthy, green cities by moseying on down to the Brickworks this Saturday afternoon and working your way through 10 Ontario farm-fresh food stations. Prepared by over 40 Canadian celeb-chefs, you'll get a wagon's fill of country-inspired food with each dish that's also conveniently paired alongside a Creemore Springs craft beer and some Dillon's Small Batch Distillers spirits.

ETSY Made in Canada Market

Date: Sept. 27
Location: MaRS Building, 101 College St.

Part of a 30-city, nationwide co-ordinated day of pop-up shops, this Saturday is a great opportunity to support some of our most artistic, passionate Torontrepreneurs. In the glass-roofed atrium of the Heritage MaRS building you'll find more than 100 vendors selling their unique, locally crafted wares. There's no admission charge, and if you're one of the first 50 visitors, you'll get a free swag-bag filled with sample items from the vendors.

Oktoberfest at Amsterdam Brewhouse on the Lake

Date: Oct. 2-4
Location: 245 Queens Quay W., South Building

Start getting used to it, folks: There's going to be a lot of Oktoberfesting these next few weeks. Last week was Steam Whistle; this week it's Amsterdam Brewhouse on the Lake. They'll have a German-inspired menu, tons of beer, and what their website calls an "Oom-pah-pah band." Admission is free but you're probably vise (that's German for "wise") to make a reservation.

Live Music

Date: Sept. 27-Oct. 2
Location: Various locations

Just because summer's over doesn't mean Toronto's live music scene has slowed down for a second. You might have to forget about hanging out on the Amphitheatre lawn, but head out to catch the likes of Chromeo, DJ Grandmaster Flash, Robert Plant, Lykke Li, and even a Johnny Cash Tribute Night at The Horseshoe Tavern over the next seven days. It's not like you'll need a sweater at any of these hot shows, anyway ...

Mariners eventually get to junior Jays

MLB. With Toronto giving youngsters a shot, Seattle avoids sweep

On Thursday

Mariners	Blue Jays

With his team eliminated from post-season contention, Blue Jays manager John Gibbons turned to a rookie pitcher and a new-look lineup for Thursday's series finale against Seattle.

The results were mixed.

Daniel Norris turned in a decent performance in his first big-league start but the Mariners fought back for a 7-5 victory to avoid a four-game sweep keeping their slim playoff hopes alive.

Gibbons rested regulars like Jose Reyes, Dioner Navarro and Jose Bautista and inserted several late-season callups into the lineup. Dalton Pompey of Mississauga was the leadoff man while the bottom half of the order featured Toronto native George Kottaras, Kevin Pillar, Anthony Gose and Ryan Goins.

Pompey had a decent game with a run, a hit and two walks while Norris gave up one hit and two earned runs over 3 1/3 innings.

"That's a big thing, a lot of guys don't get that chance to come up at the end of the season," Gibbons said. "When (players) go into a new season and they get called up for the first time, it can be a little intimidating.

"(Playing now) is going to help them all, regardless of the results."

Logan Morrison belted a three-run shot for Seattle (84-75) and added a solo homer as the Mariners ended a five-game losing skid. Seattle entered play three games behind the Kansas City Royals and Oakland Athletics in the race for the two American League wild-card spots.

"We're still in the ring, still fighting," said Seattle manager Lloyd McClendon.

Call it four-man bobsled still, but women can start taking part in the event this season.

Bobsled's world governing body, known as the FIBT, has opened the four-man competitions to mixed gender teams.

Teams consisting of a female pilot driving and men push-starting the bob could now be seen on the World Cup circuit from December and at the world championships in February next year.

Raptors hone focus this training camp

They have what they think are a few good men and no more need enquire.

Despite being allowed to have a 20-man roster for training camp and pre-season, the Raptors are content to stay with the 17 individuals they have obligations to at the moment.

The Raptors have enough bodies, they have enough kids who need a heavy workload and they are quite satisfied being below the threshold.

"It's a better way to get Bebe (Nogueira) and Bruno (Caboclo) enough reps all the way through training camp," president and general manager Masai Ujiri said this week.

Noguiera and Caboclo are the two kids who will benefit the most from extensive work in practices and in games. Having other players around who may play the same position without a hope of making the team is silly.

Nogueira, the seven-foot Brazilian obtained from Atlanta in a trade involving Lou Williams for John Salmons, isn't likely to see much action once the season starts and could use all the work he can get.

The same goes for the 6-9 Caboclo, the Raps' first-round selection in June's draft.

Both will get extensive work in camp and pre-season games, Ujiri said, before likely settling into roles as deep bench players once the regular season starts.

"They probably aren't going to play a lot so we need to get them as much time as we can now," said Ujiri who also suggested there could be D-League stints in the future for each of the youngsters.

Rielly pays no mind to sophomore jinx

NHL. Defenceman heading into second year after playing 73 games in 2013-14

Morgan Rielly, the Maple Leafs defenceman, said he's been doing some research into a possible peril of his impending NHL season. This particular trap door has been called the sophomore jinx — the phenomenon that comes when a player's second time through the league's regular-season grind somehow doesn't improve upon the results of his first.

Rielly, for his part, is aware of its alleged existence.

"I've talked about it with some people, coaches and stuff like that. But I'm not concerned with it," Rielly, 20, said. "There's lots of good players who have had slumps (in their second NHL season). But there's plenty that haven't. I don't think it's a jinx or anything like that."

On that point, he's not necessarily spouting the consensus opinion. Ron Wilson, the ex-Leafs coach, once estimated that 80 per cent of NHLers endure a falloff in the follow-up to their introductory year.

A year ago at this time, Rielly was ensconced in Leafs training camp but pegged by many to be bound for Moose Jaw and another season of junior hockey. That's when he began defying expectations. Given the Leafs' lack of options — as a 19-year-old, he wasn't eligible to be sent to the American Hockey League — Rielly's NHL trial run turned into a season-long stay. He put up two goals and 27 points in 73 games, earned some power-play run and averaged nearly 18 minutes a night — all of which was enough to stoke hope among the Leafs faithful that the solid-bodied Vancouverite might soon bloom into an NHL star.

His second year will bring different challenges. But Rielly says he's aware of the historic possibilities and isn't exactly bracing for a roll in the dol-drums.

"In my personal opinion, it's all in your head," he said. "But I guess that's just the way I see it.

"I mean, it's just a matter of how hard you train in the off-season, how you approach every game, and the players around you. I think I've been pretty good in all those areas. So I have some extra confidence going into this year, and I'm not worried about the slump or anything like that."

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Early cuts

The Maple Leafs brass decided Thursday morning to cut 13 players: forwards David Broll, Connor Brown, Jamie Devane, Greg McKegg, Carson McMillan, Brad Ross and Brady Vail as well as defencemen Eric Knodel, Andrew MacWilliam, Brendan Mikkelson and Tom Nilsson have all been assigned to the American Hockey League along with goaltenders Christopher Gibson and Cal Heeter.

- Toronto's roster stands at 41 players (25 forwards, 12 defencemen and four goaltenders).

As a rookie, Maple Leafs defenceman Morgan Rielly scored two goals and ended up with 27 points in 73 games last season. GETTY IMAGES FILE

Size isn't everything for Browns receiver

Short stature, high speed. Andrew Hawkins leads Browns in receiving yards after three games

Five-foot-seven receiver Andrew Hawkins is thriving amongst the trees with the Cleveland Browns. JOE SARGENT/GETTY IMAGES

Andrew Hawkins is one of the smallest players on the Browns' roster, but he's made one of the biggest impressions so far this season.

Through Cleveland's first three games, the five-foot-seven, 180-pound Hawkins leads the team in receiving with 21 catches for 244 yards.

"It's early still, we still have a lot of work to do, but I'm very blessed," Hawkins said Thursday as he and his teammates were packing up to enjoy their bye week.

The Browns signed the 28-year-old Hawkins to an offer sheet in March, and when the Bengals chose not to exercise first-refusal rights on the restricted free agent, Cleveland landed the receiver, who actually began his career with the Browns as a tryout player at the team's 2008 rookie minicamp.

Hawkins also spent two years (2009-10) in the CFL with the Montreal Alouettes and current Bears coach Marc Trestman, along with appearing on Michael Irvin's reality TV show, "4th and Long," in 2009.

"Coming from where I came from, being on the couch praying just for an opportunity to be on the practice squad, and that taking years to get accomplished," Hawkins said. "I'm always in awe, just being in this situation, I always have to pinch myself because there's times I didn't think this would be possible."

So far, he's certainly taking advantage of the situation. Hawkins has developed chemistry on the field with quarterback Brian Hoyer, as he is averaging seven catches a game.

"His ability to beat man-to-man coverage, that's all it takes to play on the outside," wide receivers coach Mike McDaniel said. "He has the speed to do that. I wouldn't say it's surprised me. He's lived up to my expectations since he's been in-house."

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
You seem to have overdone it recently and now need time to recover from your exertions. Even so, Aries is never inactive for long and come the beginning of next week you will be on the go again. Where to?

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Something will happen over the next few days that undermines your confidence. Be that as it may everything will be resolved when Venus, your ruler, changes signs next week.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
The setbacks and disappointments of recent months can now be seen in a much more positive light. Even when you were on the receiving end of bad news it was teaching you and toughening you up.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Take advantage of the Sun moving through Libra to sit back and relax. If you have not finished something by now chances are it will never see the light of day, so forget it.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Don't think about all the bad things that go on in the world — think about how you personally can make it a better place. What is your special talent? How can you use it to make people smile? Get to it!

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
According to the planets there are things going on behind the scenes of which you are only vaguely aware. Keep your eyes and ears open over the next 24 hours.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Developments in your social life may have the edge taken off them by bad news concerning your finances today. Mercury's move into the money area of your chart tomorrow will bring an obvious answer.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Saturn in your sign is not quite so restrictive but that does not mean you can loosen your hold on the purse strings. Soon, a new source of income will pop up — then you can splurge.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
On the work front someone is trying to undermine you by talking you down in front of employers. Don't worry, they won't get anywhere.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You've been keeping to yourself a lot in recent days and friends and family members are wondering why. Put their minds at rest by telling them your plans. Just because you've been quiet does not mean you've been doing nothing.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
It may not feel right that certain people have the power to force you in a certain direction but in a matter of days you will be glad it happened that way. t seems you lack the willpower to do what has to be done.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Someone you live or work with will be irritable in the extreme over the next 24 hours. There is no point trying to reason with them or cheer them up because they enjoy being negative.
